Priced at £115.00 the Klipsch R5 features a hand-stitched, edge-treated leather neckband. Combined with the R5's light weight, this innovative design enables the Klipsch neckband earphones to rest comfortably against your skin or be tucked under the collar of your shirt.

Though incredibly compact, the R5 carries an impressive level of technology. Equipped with Bluetooth, the R5 swiftly wirelessly connects with similarly-armed smartphones and music devices. And the better its musical partner the (even) better it sounds – the Klipsch R5 Neckband is compatible with both aptX and AAC high-definition Bluetooth streaming.

The R5's built-in, rechargeable battery – to refuel, simply hook up to a USB port using the supplied cable – is good for over eight hours of listening to music and taking calls. Talking of talking, this is another area where the R5 is a clear leader. Its integrated cVc® microphone enhances vocal clarity and reduces environmental noise.

And the entire call can be conducted handsfree – the R5 vibrates when you receive a call and its raised controls let you answer, as well as adjust volume and, when listening to music, skip tracks. The Klipsch R5 is even rated IPX4, meaning it can cope with the likes of rain and spray from any direction.

When it comes to delivering your tunes, the R5 more than manages. Klipsch is internationally recognised for its exciting sonics and the design team condenses this legendary sound into the R5's 5mm micro-driver. The little acoustic modules help ensure a deeper fit and hold, creating the ideal platform from which to keep your ears entertained. Even better, the R5 features its maker's patented contour ear tips: anatomically designed to accurately sit inside the ear canal, the oval tips reduce ear fatigue as well as form the perfect seal for noise isolation and bass response.
